

EOBR will not aid in enforcement of hours of service. To get drivers to comply with HOS the fines should be harsh as with drugs. Companies want drivers to run over hours to move their freight. Most companies don't make an effort to schedule loads per drivers HOS but only consider the customers request to deliver at a given time. Thinking that companies will govern the hours of service is like the fox guarding the henhouse.